McCain Outlines Iraq Exit

Presumptive GOP nominee says war can be won by 2013

COLUMBUS, OHIO | Republican John McCain declared for the first time Thursday he believes the Iraq war can be won by 2013, although he rejected suggestions that his talk of a timetable put him on the same side as Democrats clamoring for full-scale troop withdrawals.

The Republican presidential contender — in a mystical speech that also envisioned Osama bin Laden dead or captured, and Americans with the choice of paying a simple flat tax or following their standard 1040 form — said only a small number of troops would remain in Iraq by the end of a prospective first term because al-Qaeda will have been defeated and Iraq's government will be functioning on its own.

"By January 2013, America has welcomed home most of the servicemen and women who have sacrificed terribly so that America might be secure in her freedom. The Iraq war has been won," McCain said.

Later, McCain insisted there was a difference between ending the war and bringing troops home and, as they criticize the Democrats, announcing a withdrawal upfront without regard for the military endgame. "It's not a timetable; it's victory. It's victory, which I have always predicted," he said. (AP)

Marriage Ban Falls in Calif.

Same-sex couples may soon be able to marry in most populous state

SAN FRANCISCO | In a monumental victory for the gay rights movement, the California Supreme Court overturned a voter-approved ban on gay marriage Thursday in a ruling that would allow same-sex couples in the nation's most populous state to tie the knot.

Domestic partnerships are not a good enough substitute for marriage, the justices ruled 4-3 in striking ing down the ban.

“I’ve been waiting for this all my life. This is a life-affirming moment.”

Outside the courthouse, gay marriage supporters cried and cheered as the news spread.

Jeanie Rizzo, one of the plaintiffs, called Pali Cooper, her partner of 19 years, and asked, “Pali, will you marry me?”

“This is a very historic day. This is just such freedom for us,” Rizzo said. “This is a message that says all of us are entitled to human dignity.”

In the Castro District, historically a center of the gay community in San Francisco, Tim Oviatt started crying while watching the news on TV.

“I’ve been waiting for this all my life,” he said. “This is a life-affirming moment.”

The city of San Francisco, two dozen gay and lesbian couples, and gay rights groups sued in March 2004 after the court halted the monthlong wedding march that took place when Mayor Gavin Newsom opened the doors of City Hall to same-sex marriages.

“Today the California Supreme Court took a giant leap to ensure that everybody — not just in the state of California, but throughout the country — will have equal treatment under the law,” said City Attorney Dennis Herrera, who argued the case for San Francisco.

The challenge for gay rights advocates, however, is not over.

A coalition of religious and social conservative groups is attempting to put a measure on the November ballot that would enshrine laws banning gay marriage in the state constitution.

The Secretary of State is expected to rule by the end of June whether the sponsors gathered enough signatures to qualify the marriage amendment, similar to ones enacted in 26 other states.

If voters pass the measure in November, it would trump the court's decision.

Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger, who has twice vetoed legislation that would've granted marriage rights to same-sex couples, said in a news release that he respected the court's decision and “will not support an amendment to the constitution that would overturn this state Supreme Court ruling.”

The last time California voters were asked to express their views on gay marriage at the ballot box was in 2000. LISA LEFF (AP)

'Nazi' Remark Irks Obama

White House denies president's comment was aimed at senator

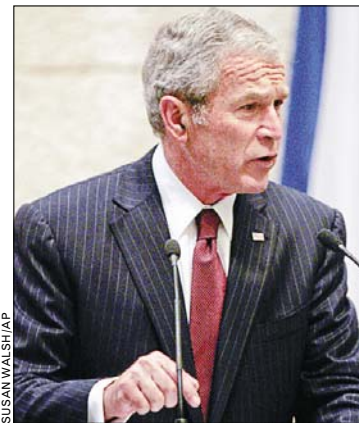

WASHINGTON | Barack Obama accused President Bush of "a false political attack" Thursday after Bush warned in Israel against appeasing terrorists — early salvos in a general election campaign that's already blazing even as the Democratic front-runner tries to sew up his party's nomination.

The White House denied Bush had targeted Obama.

John McCain, the likely Republican presidential nominee, said Obama was showing "naïveté and inexperience and lack of judgment" in his willingness to meet with U.S. foes.

Hillary Rodham Clinton called Bush's original comments "offensive and outrageous, especially in light of his failures in foreign policy."

As the workday began stateside, Bush gave a speech to Israel's Knesset in which he spoke of the president of Iran, who has called for the destruction of the U.S. ally. Then, the president said: "Some seem to believe that we should negotiate with the terrorists and radicals, as if some ingenious argument will persuade them they have been wrong all along."

"We have heard this foolish delusion before. As Nazi tanks crossed into Poland in 1939, an American senator declared: 'Lord, if I could only have talked to Hitler, all this might have been avoided.' We have an obligation to call this what it is — the false comfort of appeasement, which has been repeatedly discredited by history," Bush added.

The first-term Illinois senator responded to the comments as if they were criticism of his position that as president he would be willing to personally meet with nations aligned against the United States.

"It is sad that President Bush would use a speech to the Knesset on the 60th anniversary of Israel's independence to launch a false political attack," Obama said in a statement. "George Bush knows that I have never supported engagement with terrorists."

White House press secretary Dana Perino denied that the Knesset remark was aimed at Obama, but couldn't resist the opportunity to get in a small one.

"I understand when you're running for office you sometimes think the world revolves around you. That is not always true. And it is not true in this case," she said. LIZ SIDOTI (AP)

GOP Goes Against Bush on Farm Bill

Republicans give Congress veto-proof margin on legislation

WASHINGTON | Congress responded speedily to voters' angst over rising grocery prices and $4-per-gallon gasoline Thursday, bucking President Bush's veto threats with lopsided votes to boost food stamps and farm subsidies — after ordering Bush to quit pouring oil into the nation's emergency reserves.

Republicans, worried about steep losses in the fall elections, abandoned Bush on the votes.

"If you're running for office this year, obviously, you want to demonstrate that you can put up a record of accomplishment that's based upon working with both sides of the political aisle," said GOP Sen. John Thune of South Dakota. "I think people, even those who don't necessarily represent farm states, also want to do something about energy, and they want to do something about the high cost of food."

Despite Bush's strong opposition, 35 of the Senate's 49 Republicans voted Thursday with Democrats to pass and send to the White House a $290 billion farm bill that will increase food aid for the needy as well as subsidies for farmers enjoying record-high incomes. A hundred Republicans in the House had voted the same way Wednesday, a day after the party's third straight loss of a long-held GOP seat to Democrats in special elections.

"I think the fact that they've lost three House seats in a row, people are thinking, 'Gee, do I really want to stand with the president? It looks like this ship's going down,'" said Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D.

China Shifts Post-Quake Priorities

Government begins to deal with the dead, accepts foreign aid

LUOSHUI TOWN, CHINA | Troops dug burial pits and smoke poured from crematorium chimneys in central China as priorities began shifting Thursday from the hunt for survivors of this week's massive earthquake to dealing with the dead. Officials said the final toll could more than double to 50,000.

As the massive, military-led recovery operation inched further into regions cut off by Monday's quake, the government sought to enlist the Chinese public's help with an appeal for everything from hammers to cranes. In a turnabout, China also began accepting foreign aid missions, first from Japan.

Millions of survivors left homeless or too terrified to go indoors faced their fourth night sleeping outdoors, as workers patched roads to reach more towns.

Health officials said there had been no outbreaks of disease so far, with workers rushing to inoculate survivors against disease, supply them with drinking water and find ways to dispose of corpses.

Experts said hope was quickly fading for anyone still trapped in the

In Dujiangyan, a 22-year-old woman was pulled to safety after more than three days trapped under debris. She was interviewed by state television as rescuers worked to free her. "I was confident that you were coming to rescue me. I'm alive. I'm so happy," the unidentified woman said. WILLIAM FOREMAN (AP)

Explosion Kills 100 In Nigeria

Fuel pipeline blast sends massive flames over houses, school

IJEGUN, NIGERIA | A road-grader accidentally tore open a fuel pipeline Thursday and sent an inferno raging over houses and a school, setting off a stampede of terrified children and killing about 100 people and injuring 20, a Red Cross official said.

The road construction equipment was working in Ijegun village on the distant outskirts of Nigeria's main city, Lagos, when it pierced the pipe and fuel began spewing into the surrounding neighborhood, Red Cross disaster coordinator Suleman Maikubi said.

Moments later, an explosion billowed oily plumes of flame and soot high into the air, witnesses said.

Pupils in crowded secondary school rushed from their classrooms in panic as blazing fuel flowed toward the compound.

Children were squeezed against the schoolyard walls during the stampede, and some of the youngsters were killed, villagers said.

"Many children have died. ... You cannot even count them," said one witness, Aderemi Salau. "At least, I helped to carry 10 dead bodies," the man added, bursting into tears.

Maikubi said it was still unclear how many children were among the roughly 100 people killed. ONYEBUCHI SAMPSON (AP)

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA | Interpol said Thursday that computer files suggesting Venezuela was arming and financing Colombian guerrillas came from rebels and were not tampered with, discrediting Venezuela's claims that Colombia faked them.

Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez denounced the report as "ridiculous," saying a "show of clowns" surrounded the announcement. The findings are sure to increase pressure on Chavez to explain his relationship with the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, or FARC. More revelations are likely to emerge, since Interpol also gave Colombia 983 files it decrypted.

"We are absolutely certain that the computer ... our experts examined came from a FARC terrorist camp," said an Interpol official. (AP)

Palestinians hold black balloons to mark Israel's 60th birthday in a West Bank refugee camp near Bethlehem on Thursday.

Palestinians Mark Somber 60 Years

Crowds commemorate 1948 uprooting as Bush embraces Israel

RAMALLAH, WEST BANK | Palestinians marked the 60th anniversary of their uprooting with rallies, sirens and black balloons Thursday — an annual ritual made even darker this year by crippling internal divisions and diminishing independence hopes.

The memorial provided a stark contrast to Israel's all-out birthday bash, which included a high-profile visit by President Bush for the 60th independence day celebration.

Bush's embrace of Israel at a time when Palestinians were mourning was bound to further harm the tainted U.S. image across the Palestinian and Arab world.

Thursday's events commemorated the displacement of hundreds of thousands of Palestinians who fled or were driven out of their homes during the 1948 war over Israel's creation. Palestinians call it their "nakba," Arabic for catastrophe.

In the West Bank city of Ramallah, thousands stood in silence in downtown Manara Square as a siren wailed, then listened to a taped Abbas speech. Some carried black flags, and at a separate event youngsters released thousands of black balloons near a West Bank crossing into Israel. DALIA NAMMARI (AP)

Myanmar's Junta Spurns Aid Trade

Military government warns citizens not to hoard foreign goods

YANGON, MYANMAR | Myanmar's junta warned Thursday it will punish anyone found hoarding or trading foreign aid meant for cyclone survivors, but relief groups said they had seen no evidence of people selling or stockpiling donated goods.

The government's warning came as the official death toll from Cyclone Nargis was raised to 43,318, an increase of almost 5,000 from a day earlier, but still far below U.N. and Red Cross estimates. The number of people listed as missing remained at 27,838.

Myanmar's military, which has ruled for 46 years, has itself come under suspicion of diverting relief supplies. Its warning against hoarding alluded to the allegations, saying Private equity investor Carl Icahn on Thursday officially launched a proxy contest to unseat the board of directors at Yahoo.

Icahn Enters Yahoo Battle

Investor seeks to oust board for refusing offer from Microsoft

SAN FRANCISCO | Billionaire investor Carl Icahn is setting out to oust Yahoo Inc.'s board of directors for "irresponsible" and "unconscionable" actions that led Microsoft to withdraw a $47.5 billion offer to buy the slumping Internet pioneer.

In a letter Thursday to Yahoo Chairman Roy Bostock, Icahn wrote that outraged Yahoo shareholders urged him to lead a campaign to replace Yahoo's 10 directors at the company's July 3 annual meeting in hopes of bringing Microsoft back to the bargaining table.

"I believe that a combination between Microsoft and Yahoo is by far the most sensible path for both companies," Icahn wrote.

To give him leverage in the looming battle, Icahn revealed that he has spent at least $1.3 billion snapping up about 59 million Yahoo shares to give him a roughly 4 percent stake in the Sunnyvale, Calif., company. He plans to seek approval from the Federal Trade Commission to acquire up to $2.5 billion in Yahoo stock.

A Yahoo representative said the company would respond to Icahn's attack "soon."

Icahn told Yahoo's board it could quickly quell the shareholder mutiny by renewing negotiations with Microsoft.

The revolt threatens to jettison Jerry Yang from the company that he co-founded 14 years ago. Yang is one of Yahoo's directors and has been trying to engineer a turnaround at the struggling company.

Rhee to Overhaul 26 D.C. Schools

Chancellor seeks major changes to improve student achievement

D.C. Schools Chancellor Michelle A. Rhee Thursday announced her plans to overhaul 26 schools that have failed to meet academic targets for five straight years.

Rhee said she is seeking dramatic changes in the schools to improve student achievement. Under the federal No Child Left Behind law, Rhee had five options for turning them around: converting the schools into charter schools; replacing all or most staff; hiring an education management company to run them; turning them over to the Office of the State Superintendent of Education; or devising another plan.

Eleven of the 17 schools will get new principals. They are Anacostia High, Dunbar High, Eastern High, Woodson High, Garnet-Patterson

Rhee

Middle, Shaw Middle, Hart Middle, Lincoln Middle, MacFarland Middle, Sousa Middle and Moten Elementary.

The other seven schools receiving new instruction staff are Cardozo High, Coolidge High, Wilson High, Eliot Middle, Stanton Elementary, Truesdell Elementary and Webb-Wheatley Elementary. The five schools set to be managed by a nonprofit education firm are Anacostia, Ballou, Coolidge and Dunbar high schools, and Hart Middle. The seven schools that will devise some other plan are Roosevelt High, Spingarn High, Ron Brown Middle, Browne Junior High, Johnson Middle, Kramer Middle and Miner Elementary.

Wilson Bridge Ceremony Snarls Morning Traffic

OXON HILL, MD. | The Washington region celebrated a milestone in the $2.5 billion Woodrow Wilson Bridge project in appropriate fashion — by inadvertently creating a massive traffic jam.

Political bigwigs from Maryland, Virginia and D.C. crowded onto the new bridge Thursday to celebrate completion of the second and final span over the Potomac River.

But as workers set up tents and raised giant U.S. flags on the new span in preparation for the 11 a.m. ceremony, rubbernecking rush-hour commuters on the other span stopped to gawk, and back-ups stretched about seven miles in Maryland. Angry truckers leaned on their horns and made obscene gestures during the ceremony. (AP)

D.C. Seeks SE Waterfront Developer

WASHINGTON | District of Columbia officials are seeking a mix of shops and housing for a 50-acre site along the Anacostia waterfront next to RFK Stadium.

Mayor Adrian Fenty says the city is seeking bids for a master developer for the site known as Hill East, which includes the former D.C. General Hospital campus. The site also could feature a "healthplex" that would offer medical services. (AP)

STRAWBERRY FIELDS: Farmers can post photos and videos of their produce, like Davenport's strawberries, on FarmFoody.org.

Farmer & His Dell

Facebook meets farming as Va. man grows his Web site

IN SUNDAY SOURCE | The social-networking craze has transformed the way we stay in touch with friends, listen to music and play the dating game. Tom Davenport believes it can also help change the way we eat — and benefit the planet in the process.

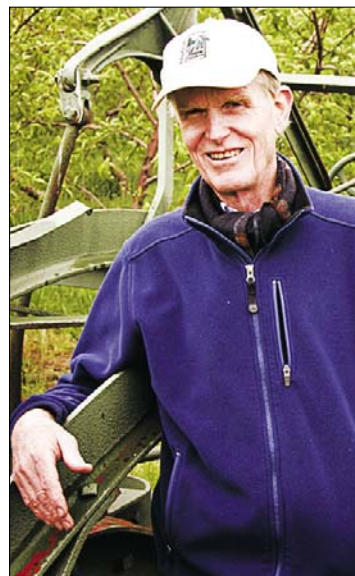

Davenport, 68, who raises beef and peaches on the Fauquier County farm where he grew up, is one of the partners behind FarmFoody.org, a Web site that lets locals and small farmers link up and share information from harvest updates to family recipes. Since FarmFoody went live less than a year ago, nearly 750 farms and foodies have joined, and a Facebook widget is in the works. We talked to Davenport about the site and the future of sustainable food.

How did you come up with the idea for FarmFoody?

I started out making films — fairy tales and then documentaries. In 1999, I had the idea that video would be big on the Web and that we could put small American folk documentaries together and archive them. ... I'm no spring chicken; I was born in 1939. But I always used computers as soon as they came out, and my wife did, too. We created a Web site, Folkstreams.net, and put it up ourselves. The Internet allowed audiences to connect with niche films, so I thought, "Why couldn't they connect with niche farms?"

How long have you been farming?

I moved back here in the 1970s and used [the farm] as a base for my film career. My father was handling the farm into the mid-1990s, and I had to take it over. I had to give up filmmaking for a while and try to save the farm. It was very important to us as a family. We began planting peach trees and direct-marketing beef and using the Internet extensively to do this. We would update the Web site almost every day, and it became a tremendous tool for us. But it was outside the realm of possibility for a normal farmer. Or a normal farmer who didn't have a wife who was an expert Web designer. So, then we decided to just jump in. One of my partners, Steve Knoblock, a programmer who lives in Arlington, brought up the social-networking idea.

IN The Washington Post

How does FarmFoody work?

It offers a way in which farmers can set up a Web presence and change it very easily. Farmers can post pictures and videos and create bulletins for customers who have pages. You can get a bulletin that says, "The strawberries are ready," or "No, we don't have any today." Another helpful feature is that farms can post FAQs, answers to frequently asked questions.

It's also different from other Web sites in that instead of links being based on things like your favorite bands, our issue was, where are you? Agriculture is related to land, so we had to create a mapping system that allows people to find and link up to farms near them.

How do farmers feel about the site?

We initially put up the pages for all the farms. Some are very into it, and some haven't claimed the pages because they never check their e-mail!

What more will FarmFoody offer in the future?

We think we can have vineyards join. Eventually, it could be international. There's no reason why it couldn't be. People are complaining in China now that food isn't as great as they remember it being in little villages. But we're starting small around Washington and then expanding. EVIANA HARTMAN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Crazy Horse Race

Strange things always seem to take place during the Preakness

HORSE RACING | Strange things always seem to happen at the Preakness. A drunken fan runs onto the track and punches at speeding horses. Barbaro breaks down in 2006. A race day power outage costs Pimlico millions of dollars.

It's enough to make everyone hold their collective breath when the gates open Saturday for Big Brown's attempt at winning the second leg of the Triple Crown.

Now in its 133rd running, a year less than the venerable Kentucky Derby, the Preakness attracts about 100,000 people and generates most of Maryland racing's yearly funding.

Big Brown is the early 1-2 favorite, and drew the No. 7 post position in the 13-horse field.

So, providing a safe dirt racing surface and letting the horses do the talking through their performances is Pimlico's goal Saturday, one of the sport's three major days that attract a national spotlight.

"Safety is always first," said Glen Kozak, who oversees maintenance of Pimlico's dirt and turf tracks. "The condition of the race-track for that day is very, very important. You never know what can happen that day."

No kidding.

In 1999, a drunken fan burst out of the infield and onto the track several hundred yards from the finish line of a race on the Preakness undercard. Horses charged by on both sides of the man without hitting him. He punched at two horses as they galloped past him, forcing jockey Jorge Chavez to pull up wagering favorite Artax.

GHOSTS OF PREAKNESS PAST: In 1999, a drunk fan, top, jumped over the rail and onto the track several hundred yards before the finish line and punched at the horses. In 2005, Barbaro pulled up several hundred yards after the start with a broken leg.

Money was refunded to fans who bet on Artax; the fan avoided jail time but was given a suspended sentence and probation.

"The Preakness is known as the party race of the Triple Crown races," said jockey Jeremy Rose, who won in 2005 with Fleet Alex and will ride Icabod Crane on Saturday. "That's why a lot of that stuff happens. But most of it is just coincidental."

At the 1998 Preakness, a fire in a transformer near the track triggered a power outage that shut down betting windows about 90 minutes before the big race, costing Pimlico nearly $2 million.

In the Infield

In 2005, Fleet Alex and Rose were cut off by Scrappy T in the stretch turn. The horses clipped heels in a frightening collision and Fleet Alex was forced nearly to his knees, drawing a collective gasp from the crowd. Incredibly, he regained his footing, tragedy was averted and Fleet Alex went on to victory.

The following year, Kentucky Derby winner Barbaro broke down after leaving the starting gate in full view of the grandstand, where shocked fans wept at the sight of him struggling to stay off his shattered right hind leg.

"I hope everything goes good. I hope everybody comes back good," trainer Nick Zito said. "That's what everybody wants, for the horses to come back safe. Unfortunately, these big races have been under the microscope." BETH HARRIS (AP)

BASEBALL | 150,000 pennies for your locker When Reds pitcher Josh Fogg came to his locker on Wednesday, he found his jersey, like always, and 150,000 pennies, the Dayton Daily reported. Ken Griffey Jr. owed Fogg $1,500, and he had warned the pitcher to expect payment in pennies. The coins were distributed among 60 boxes weighing 16 pounds each. When asked what he was going to do with all the pennies, Fogg replied, "I'm going to take them out to the bullpen and count them. I have a lot of time on my hands out there." (EXPRESS)

For Better or Worse

They are separated by a 45-minute drive, but unlike the Yankees and the Mets, or the Cubs and the White Sox, the Orioles and Nationals are each separated by at least a few good years from being the best teams in baseball. When the Orioles host the Nationals for three games starting Friday, the talk's not going to be about bragging rights, but instead about which team is in better shape for the future. Express breaks down five key positions to see who is closer to fielding a winning team. ERIC BRANDNER

1 Starting Pitching

The oft-injured but long-on-potential Shawn Hill starts for Washington in the series opener, while the most intriguing matchup may be Sunday's matinee between John Lannan and JEREMY GUTHRIE, left — two guys who could be part of their respective rotations for a long time. The Nats staff has four starters with ERAs under 4.00, but their staff will probably change significantly over the next few seasons as young pitchers make their way up. Baltimore's major league-ready staff looks better right now. EDGE: O'S

2 Relief Pitching

Baltimore's new closer, George Sherrill, has converted 15 of 17 saves. But he's already 31 years old. O's middle man Jim Johnson is both young (25) and has given up just three runs in 22 2/3 innings. Nats relievers haven't been that dominant, but their strong showing last year makes this too close to call. At the rate teams turn over relievers, the advantage here will likely sway as these teams continue to build. EDGE: PUSH

3 Infielders

Both clubs have established major leaguers in the infield, none of which are burning up the stat sheet. Each team has a legit offensive threat, though Nats third baseman RYAN ZIMMERMAN, right, is off to another slow start while Orioles' 2B Brian Roberts has a .353 on-base percentage. With the aging Melvin Mora and Kevin Millar not likely to be around when the Orioles start winning, Baltimore must make changes at two important hitting positions in the next few seasons. EDGE: NATS

4 Outfielders

The Orioles feel they have two-thirds of their outfield of the future set with center fielder ADAM JONES (.235), left, and right fielder Nick Markakis (.261, seven HRs). The Nationals are behind as far as major league-ready talent goes, but young prospects will get plenty of opportunities to earn a spot this year. Lastings Milledge is getting first crack, and the Nats will take their time evaluating him. Elijah Dukes will likely get the next shot. EDGE: O'S

5 Minor Leagues

Both organizations' minor league systems were ranked in the top 15 by Baseball Prospectus at the start of the year. In Year 2 of "The Plan," Washington has first-baseman-in-waiting Chris Marrerro, along with a bevy of low minors pitching prospects. Still, none of those players is ready. Baltimore's top pick from last year — catcher Matt Wieters — has eight home runs this year at Single-A Frederick. Still, we won't know who had the better system this year until the prospects are producing — or fizzling — in the bigs. EDGE: PUSH

Horse Racing Needs a Crown

IN SPORTS, YOU'LL HEAR a lot of so-called experts say it's good to have a dynasty.

Whether it is the Yankees, the Patriots or — about 100 years ago — Notre Dame dominating, the conventional wisdom is that fans either love, or love to hate, the almighty squad.

The popularity of the NFL and these NBA playoffs, in which we still don't know which team is best, leads me to conclude this line of thinking is generally hogwash. That is, with the exception of horse racing.

There has been no greater factor in the decline of the "sport of kings" than the absence of a Triple Crown winner.

Thirty years after Affirmed last accomplished the feat, Big Brown enters Saturday's Preakness in as good a position as any horse in recent memory to become the star of the sport needs.

A win would begin talks of the difficulties of the Belmont, the longest of the prestigious races. If Big Brown falls short at Pimlico, there's no reason to pay attention to the dying sport until next year.

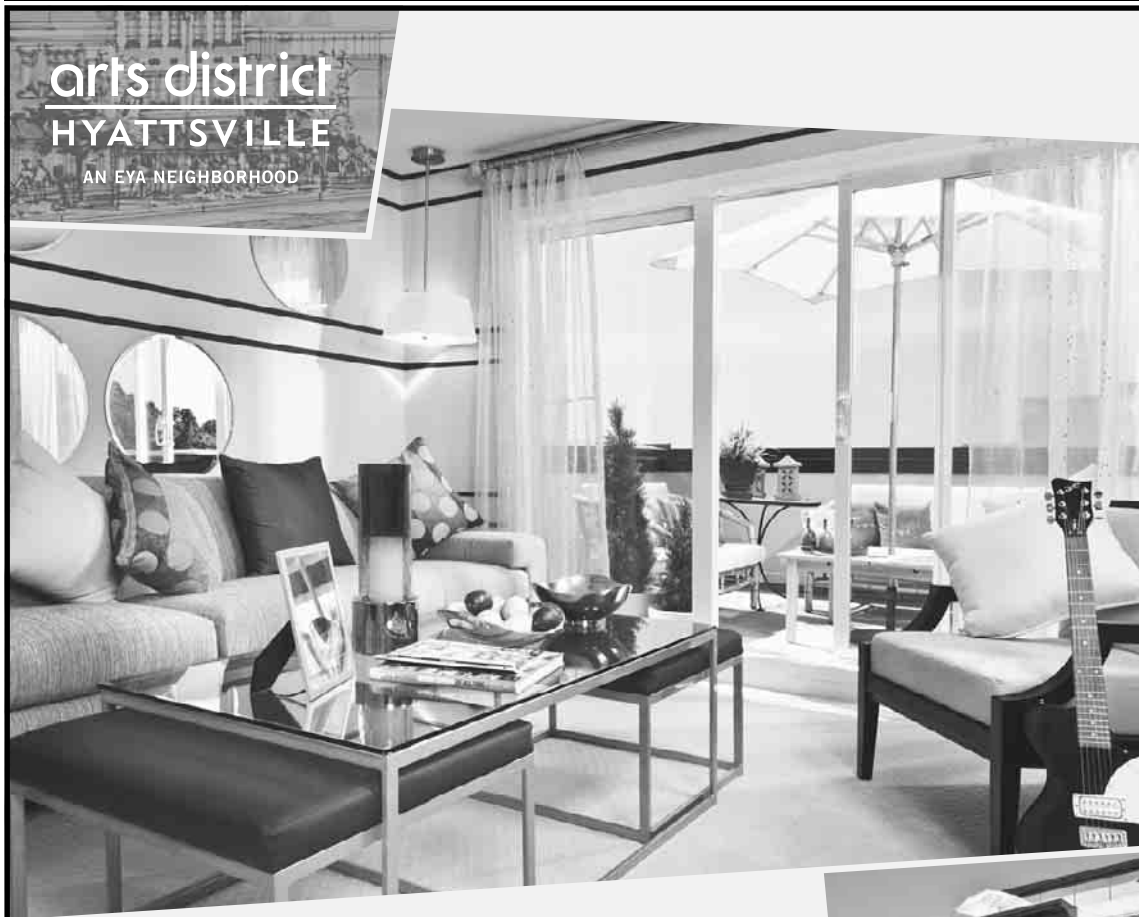

While a golfer can be great by winning one or two majors in a career, or a football team become legendary with three titles in five years, horse racing's history dictates perfection.

Fans don't need dynasties, but they want greatness. In an era with so many other options, nothing else will do.

Is Big Brown up for the challenge? As a fan, I hope so. The sport needs the prized horse to deliver.

Rondo Makes Boston Run

Playing in the Big 3's shadow, guard puts the Celtics up 3-2

NBA PLAYOFFS | The Cleveland Cavaliers were willing to give up a big 3 by Rajon Rondo to avoid being beaten by the Big Three.

And it cost them.

The second-year point guard, who thrived this season in the shadow of his three All-Star teammates, hit a pair of 3-pointers 46 seconds apart to turn the game around on Wednesday night and help the Celtics take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinals.

"He was definitely the X-factor," Cavaliers forward LeBron James said after Boston's 96-89 victory sent him back to Cleveland for a must-win Game 6. "When they were down, he hit two 3's. That's something defensively that we wanted to give up. ... Without Rondo, it would have been a much tougher game for them to win. He was definitely the player of the game."

The Celtics underwent one of the most dramatic overhauls in NBA history last summer, bringing in Ray Allen and Kevin Garnett to join mainstay Paul Pierce in a sort of Big Three 2.0. The only questions going into the season were whether the three stars would be able to share the ball, and whether Rondo would be able to handle the pressure of getting it to them.

Rondo, who started 25 games the previous year as a rookie, developed into a dependable point guard and averaged over 10 points, five assists and four rebounds.

"We pretty much have given him the keys all year," Celtics coach Doc Rivers said.

At one point in the third quarter on Wednesday, Rivers looked out on the floor and saw Rondo bent over tugging on his shorts — the telltale sign of a tired player. Rivers told Rondo to keep putting pressure on the defense, and Rondo seemed to realize then that, unlike during the regular season, he was going to need to do that all game.

"He's right now starting to understand that this is hard," Rivers said. "It's tougher than anything he's ever done." JIMMY GOLEN (AP)

Harris' Diving Grab Helps Nats Win in N.Y., 1-0

NATIONALS | Willie Harris' diving catch in the ninth inning saved Washington, and the slick-fielding Nationals beat the Mets 1-0 Thursday behind Jason Bergmann's fantastic pitching performance.

Washington won an unlikely duel between Bergmann and Mike Pelfrey, who carried a no-hit bid into the seventh. Harris' bunt set up Felipe Lopez's sacrifice fly in the eighth, helping the Nationals take three of four at Shea Stadium.

The Mets put a runner on third with one out in the ninth, but first baseman Aaron Boone snared Carlos Delgado's low liner and threw across the diamond to double off Carlos Beltran to end the game.

Bergmann pitched seven sharp innings, giving up three hits and striking out nine, one shy of his career high. RACHEL COHEN (AP)

Mystics Sport New Look

Washington upgrades its front line after a disappointing season

MYSTICS | Nikki Teasley's gone. So is DeLisha Milton-Jones.

After a disappointing 16-18 season, the Mystics made extensive moves in the offseason and will take the floor for Saturday's season opener against Indiana with a new cast to compliment stars Alana Beard and Monique Currie.

The most glaring need for a Mystics team that shot just 40 percent last year was for inside players to support center Nakia Sanford. The Mystics shipped Milton-

Jones, a star who shot just 35 percent from the field last year, to L.A. for Taj McWilliams-Franklin. The nine-year veteran averaged 11 points and six rebounds last year.

Washington also used the draft to address its front-court weakness, picking Maryland's Crystal Langhorne in the first round.

Langhorne, a 6-foot-2 forward, shot 65 percent from the floor last year. The team hopes the two new additions will give them an offensive presence down low that was missing last year.

Langhorne

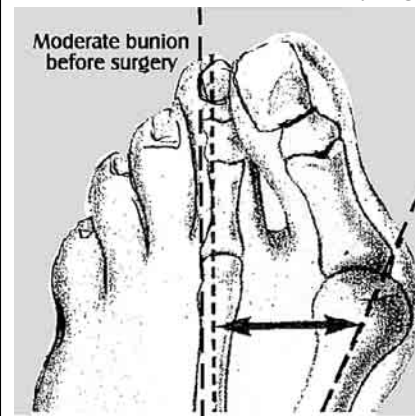

But the Mystics also like to get out and run, and the big shocker of the offseason was when the team parted with point guard Nikki Teasley, who had her worst statistical season last year but is a steady six-year vet and fan favorite. Coach Tree Rollins will rely on Beard, Nikki Blue, Coco Miller and Amber Jacobs — who comes to D.C. from the Minnesota Lynx — to run his up-tempo, fast-break-focused offense.

Rollins has called Beard "our Gilbert Arenas," and, like Arenas, Beard was tormented by a nagging injury (shoulder) last summer, though she still averaged more than 18 points. She is expected to sit out this year's first two games. TIM FOLLOS

RIGHTFUL RULER: Ben Barnes, center, stars in "The Chronicles of Narnia: Prince Caspian," as a leader denied his throne.

Mighty 'Caspian'

'Narnia' part 2 is darker and funnier than its predecessor

FILM | More is more in "The Chronicles of Narnia: Prince Caspian," the follow-up to the 2005 fantasy hit "The Chronicles of Narnia: The Lion, The Witch and the Wardrobe," both adapted from the books by C.S. Lewis. It's simultaneously darker and funnier, more substantive and more engaging, more violent and more technically accomplished.

"Prince Caspian" picks up a year after the Pevensie children — eldest Peter (William Moseley), young woman Susan (Anna Popplewell), teenager Edmund (Skandar Keynes) and youngster Lucy (Georgie Henley) — left Narnia and returned to school during World War II-era London. But 1,300 years have passed in the magical land where they once served as kings and queens; now under the rule of the Telmarines, the place is in ruins. The animals have gone into hiding in the forest and the majestic lion Aslan (voiced by Liam Neeson) hasn't been seen in a millennium.

The foursome is accidentally summoned back there by Prince

Caspian (British stage actor Ben Barnes), whose life is in danger. His power-hungry uncle, Lord Miraz (Sergio Castellitto), and his wife have a newborn son whom Miraz hopes will one day be king — instead of the prince.

The birth sends Caspian fleeing on horseback through the woods and across a treacherous river in the dark of night in the film's thrilling, suspenseful opening. Andrew Adamson, veteran of the "Shrek" movies who also directed the first "Narnia," shot the film with a cast and crew of thousands on location in unspoiled, rustic settings in New Zealand, Slovenia, Poland and the Czech Republic.

Once the kids return to Narnia — which they reach through a tube station — they must band together with Caspian and the creatures of Narnia to fight Miraz and his massive army and restore the throne to its rightful heir.

Sound like a fun adventure for the whole family? It's not. This "Narnia" is strictly for tweens and up with its palace intrigue and protracted battle scenes, and some creatures and action sequences may be too frightening for little ones.

But despite the heavier themes of betrayal of trust and loss of innocence, this "Narnia" also has a healthier share of light moments, too. British comic Eddie Izzard steals the show as the voice of Reepicheep, a flamboyant, swashbuckling mouse.

I'm planning to go to the Greek festival at St. Sophia's this weekend and am wondering about the best way to get there. Will there be parking available?

We think you could park on the street. If it's nice out Saturday (we hope, right?), a walk from Woodley wouldn't be terrible. Or catch a bus: The N2-6 series runs on Mass., or you could get a bus on Wisconsin and walk the short distance down Mass.

→ St. Sophia Greek Orthodox Cathedral, 36th Street and Massachusetts Avenue; Fri.-Sat., noon-9 p.m., free; 202-333-4730.

You want this gyro? Head to the Greek festival at St. Sophia's for good grub.

Any news on Co Co. Sala? My fingers and toes are crossed that it's delicious. Can you hang out and get drinks there?

It is delicious. I think stopping in for drinks and dessert is probably the best way to dine there. The cocktails are delish and the desserts are top-notch. The savory dishes were good but too small to really make a full meal out of them.

'AMW' celebrates a sizable contribution to bad-guy booking

PURSUIT | When he started "America's Most Wanted," John Walsh could point to at least one thing in its favor: Society's swampland of bad people doing bad things would never run dry. On that basis, the show seems a cinch to run forever.

It recently marked 20 years on the air. And this week (9 p.m. Saturday on Fox) it observes another milestone: the arrest of the 1,000th fugitive targeted by "AMW" since April 1988 — Dwight Smith, a real estate agent accused of murdering a friend over a deal gone awry.

Airing from Times Square, this special edition of "AMW" may have a more festive feel than usual. But Walsh is under no delusions the larger fight is over or will ever be won.

"I know firsthand that lots of people get away with murder," he states flatly.

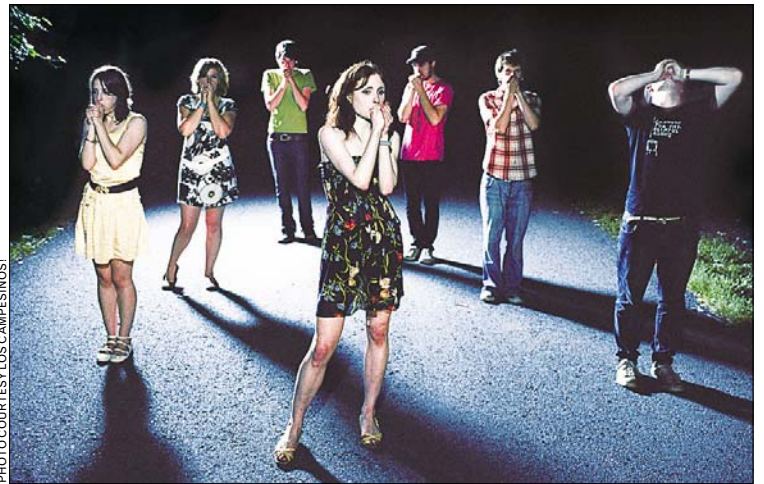

Having lost a son to violent crime, host John Walsh takes a personal interest.

He found that out when his 6-year-old son Adam was abducted and murdered in 1981. The investigation was botched. The likely killer died in prison, where he was serving time for an unrelated crime. Adam got no justice.

"But on 'AMW' I see some incredible, immediate results," Walsh says, "where you really do catch somebody, get some justice and maybe save lives: You know, some killers are gonna continue until they get caught." FRAZIER MOORE (AP)

FRIDAY

The last House of Sweden evening event — House of Sweden After Dark — was, to put it nicely, a mad-house. Held at the waterfront cultural space and exhibition center, the February party mixed exhibits by Swedish artists with a DJ and several hours of open bar for a $10 cover charge. This, of course, led to a packed house and a long, long wait to get inside. Those of us who went early and made it in, though, had a great time — the photographs were fascinating, DJ oo7's had the crowd dancing, and there's nothing wrong with unlimited cocktails. HOUSE OF SWEDEN AFTER DARK is back for round two tonight, and attendees should hope the weather holds: The party's on the rooftop deck, where the awesome views of the Potomac will be complemented by a (cash) bar and DJs spinning Swedish pop music. Inside, there are exhibits to explore, DJs spinning dance music and more bars. Tickets are $20 in advance from houseofswedenafterdark.com (no sales at the door), and attire is "cocktail party."

There are plenty of warning signs about Welsh indie-pop septet Los Campesinos! First off, they are a septet, which means that a couple of band members are pretty much superfluous. Then there's the exclamation point in the band's name, the fact that all band members adopted "Campesinos" as a last name and that some of their song titles make Panic at the Disco song titles seem brief. It could be the perfect recipe for something unbearably precious and annoying, but the band is armed with the one thing that outweighs everything else — good songs. The band's indie-pop confections are boisterously fun, full of shout-along choruses and bouncy melodies. The Aquarium and Pash open at the BLACK CAT.

SATURDAY

DJ I-Wah's TABAQ residency helps maintain a foothold of original U Street soul among the increasingly flossy face-lifts happening in that quarter. Tonight, his Sacred Art Saturday adds a few extra dimensions in honor of the birthday of Malcolm X. Jali D of Busboys and Poets house band PS24 joins the hip-hop duo Hueman Prophets for a couple of live sets on the second floor, which will be turned into a gallery and performance space. Entry is free with RSVP to soulcialscience@gmail.com by 3 p.m. Saturday.

You have to give COMET PING PONG credit for hosting some interesting shows and with increasing regularity. For a while, everything was Gypsy Eyes-related, but now they've branched out from their roster to bring in some fresh acts. Ecstatic Sunshine plays the kind of music that, if you don't like it, you might claim isn't really music at all. There are no verses or choruses, just long stretches of ambient noise that sometimes lead into stretches of loud noise. When it works, which is more often than not, it makes you say, "Man, this is niiiiice."

BABY MAMA (PG-13, 96 minutes) Tina Fey is an overachieving corporate vice president who hires a working-class party girl (Amy Poehler) to be a surrogate mother: Angie, a hard-edged, slightly ditzzy dame who has decided to rent out her womb at the advice of her loser of a common-law husband, Carl (Dax Shepard). Fey and Poehler could easily have become caricatures. Instead, each actress gives her character her dignity, grounding her as a recognizable human being. Audiences alive to the modest charms of its take on female friendship will be rewarded with at least a few quiet chuckles. (AH)

DR. SEUSS' HORTON HEARS A WHO! (G, 88 minutes) A computer-animated feature that strikes an amiable balance between honoring the text and the dictates of contemporary animation, the film is as good as one could hope for in this era of post-literate impatience. It does honor the book's flavor and spirit with a bright, funny treatment. Voice performers Jim Carrey (as Horton) and Steve Carell (the Mayor) play their roles just right, without making the movie about them. In the McCarthy era in which the book was written, people saw pointed commentary in its depiction of the fascistic qualities in the people of Who-ville. In a subtle but effective way, the movie sounds a central message: We shouldn't be tone deaf to other people's realities. (DT)

88 MINUTES (R, 105 minutes) Al Pacino plays a playboy-forensic-psychologist-professor who, on the eve of the execution of the man whom he most famously testified against, receives a phone message that he has 88 minutes to live. He must find the putative killer and prevent his own death even as bodies are being uncovered. The implausibility of the movie is only one problem; there are so many others. The truth hasn't been stretched, it has been drawn and quartered. (SH)

THE FORBIDDEN KINGDOM (PG-13, 113 minutes) Jason Tripitakas (Michael Angarano) is a modern American teenager. His friendship with an elderly pawnshop proprietor in Chinatown leads to a journey to ancient China. He finds himself hurtling into the past, dispatched to return a precious wooden staff. And he teams with a scruffy, drunken kung fu master (Jackie Chan). Chan manages to endear himself in the worst of movies, which is what he does here. The kung fu includes master fighter Jet Li as a warlord, but it's

FORGETTING SARAH MARSHALL (R, 110 minutes) We can either laugh or weep at man's infinite capacity to do stupid things. Which is why guffawing at the naked guy flexing his breasts in this film is not only time enjoyably spent, but philosophically cathartic. The male of the species — amusingly hapless Peter (Jason Segel)

— retreats to Hawaii, trying to get over a traumatic breakup, only to find himself in the same hotel as his recent ex, TV actress Sarah Marshall (Kristen Bell). The movie uses semi-improvisational scenes to find the hilarious interface between man's vulnerability and dorkability. (DT) arrested and racially profiled on a flight to Amsterdam. An idiotic Homeland Security agent (Rob Corddry) has them sent to Guantanamo Bay. The political satire in this semi-obscene frat-house romp has a really clever edge, so it's too bad the film limits its audience with such fatiguing lewdness. JANE HORWITZ

IRON MAN (PG-13, 120 minutes) Tony Stark (Robert Downey Jr.) is taken prisoner by a warlord who orders him to build a state-of-the-art weapon. Instead, Stark builds a suit of iron, the better to bust out of the cave and give his enemies a beat-down. The real Iron Man doesn't emerge until Stark is back in California. He announces that his company is getting out of the weapons business. Thenceforth, the film sets about the business of proving that plowshares can be as sexy as swords. It succeeds only fitfully. (AH)

MADE OF HONOR (PG-13, 101 minutes) Patrick Dempsey and Michelle Monaghan have it all, in terms of looks, likability and even how they blend together. But they're hapless prisoners in a nasty little caper that follows convention as conventionally as possible. Tom (Dempsey) is a lady-killer, and Hannah (Monaghan) is the one woman he never quite seduces.

COMING OF AGE WITH SYLVESTER STALLONE: Will Poulter in "Son of Rambow."

NIM'S ISLAND (PG, 95 minutes) The plucky heroine at the center of this film is an 11-year-old girl named Nim (Abigail Breslin), who, since her mother died at sea, has lived with her scientist father, Jack (Gerard Butler). When Jack goes plankton hunting and leaves Nim behind, mayhem breaks loose. As luck would have it, her favorite author e-mails her dad for research information, resulting in the world-famous writer making a trip to Fiji to come to Nim's aid. How refreshing to see a girl embark on derring-do that, in Nim's own words, makes her the hero of her own story. (AH) film, this movie feels just plain dumb. The police are hilariously inept, and the way in which the teen victims wander off alone so the psychopath can get them is flat-footed, even for a slasher flick. High school senior Donna (Brittany Snow) still has nightmares about the home invasion and murder of her family, which she barely escaped. As she and her pals head off with their dates to the prom, the cop (Idris Elba) who caught the killer (Johnathon Schaech) learns that he has escaped.

But does he warn Donna right away? Nooooo. (JH)

REDBELT (R, 99 minutes) Mike (Chiwetel Ejiofor) runs a martial arts academy, specializing in teaching cops and soldiers. He will not compete in the profitable world of televised Brazilian jujitsu even though he's related by marriage to the sport's reigning champion. He thinks competition, especially for TV money, desecrates the sanctity of his art. Mike is in a bar one night when a tough guy tries to take down a drunken movie star (Tim Allen). Mike jumps in. He's soon drawn into the orbit of the movies, and he encounters a whole new world of prosperity just in time, as he's discovering how little money there is in integrity. (SH)

SON OF RAMBOW (PG-13, 96 minutes) This film dusts the cliches from the coming-of-age movie with its charming account of the growing friendship between two English boys in the early 1980s. The teens are Will (Bill Milner), a soft-spoken but plucky lad forbidden by his family's religious sect to watch television, and Lee (Will Poulter), a punky kid whose volatile family life causes him to act up at school. Thrown together by circumstance, they soon realize that their teamwork fills an emotional void in their lives. They infuse this story with a crowd-pleasing combination of buoyant spirit and occasionally dark humor, as Will, Lee and a very eccentric French exchange student (Jules Sitruk) attempt to revisit it Sylvester Stallone's one-dimensional machismo territory with the goofy earnestness of youth. (DT)

STREET KINGS (R, 107 minutes) The movie's moral relativity (that the dividing line between good cop and bad cop is a matter of inches) seems like a flimsy pretext for hard-core shock value: nasty violence, colorful cussing and multi-bullet executions. The big-name casting of Keanu Reeves and Forest Whitaker brings no honor, or even fun, to the hackneyed roles. (DT)

THEN SHE FOUND ME (R, 100 minutes) April Epner (Helen Hunt) is a 39-year-old teacher whose biological clock is clouding her judgment: April is marrying Ben. Like anything done for the wrong reasons, there's an implicit doom hanging over the nuptials. And then ... the domestic effluence hits the rotary appliance: Mom dies. Ben leaves. And local TV celebrity Bernice Graves (Bette Midler), materializes to announce that she is April's biological mother. In the midst of this, Frank (Colin Firth), one of April's school dads, starts lighting up her life. The film suffers from, if anything, a lack of pure confidence in the story, the actors or the audience. But anyone going to see it won't need quite the number of clues as to how they're supposed to be feeling. They'll know. (JA)

21 (PG-13, 123 minutes) Micky Rosa (Kevin Spacey), MIT professor by day, gambling entrepreneur by night, who recruits six of his best and brightest students to fly to Sin City on weekends and cheat themselves rich. It's hard to throw them a high-five. Yes, Ben Campbell (Sturgess) is a sweet, lower-middle-class kid who has dreamed all his life of going from MIT to Harvard med and accepts Micky's invitation into the circle only to put himself through school. Unfortunately, this characterization feels too saintly. The story may be based on real events, but most of it feels patently false. (DT)

THE VISITOR (PG-13, 103 minutes) Richard Jenkins plays widowed economics professor Walter Vale, who reluctantly agrees to give a paper at NYU and, upon arriving at his Manhattan pied-a-terre, discovers that it has been illegally sublet to Tarek (Haaz Sleiman) and Zainab (Danai Gurira), both of whom are undocumented. The film gives viewers a perceptive, deeply personal take on the timeless immigrant narrative, in which the most epic journey is finally one of self-discovery. (AH) minutes) Not that this film is any kind of great movie, but it's an exceedingly bright comedy that never makes you feel stupid for enjoying its brisk pacing, smart lines, sound construction and superb comic acting. Ashton Kutcher and Cameron Diaz meet one drunken evening in Vegas and get married. OK, time for a quickie divorce, except she gives him a quarter, he feeds it into a slot machine and they win $3 million. The real pleasure in the film comes from the two stars, both of whom put vanity and narcissism far behind and are pleased to let the movie deploy them as less than noble, less than capable, less than smart and less than beautiful and, therefore, more than human. (SH)

YOUNG@HEART (PG, 110 minutes) This film follows a choir of generally peppy septuagenarians from Northampton, Mass., through six weeks of practice, trial, tribulation and performance. The gimmick is that they're rockers, rappers and punks. Singing in the chorus gives meaning to life; living for the whole and not the self, the love of comrades of the same circumstance and situation, that's what keeps them alive. (SH)

Television

REDEMPTION FOR CHAPMAN: New episodes of “Dog the Bounty Hunter” will begin airing in July on ABC. The show was previously canceled after star Duane “Dog” Chapman (unfortunately, a human, not a loveable K-9 cop) used a racial slur.

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

SKELETONS IN THE CLOSET
GHOST WHISPERER (8 p.m., CBS, Fri.) ends its third season with Melinda’s discovering more about her father’s secret and just how much her mother (Anne Archer) did to cover it up.

WHEREFORE ART THOU, SAGET?
Tom Bergeron hosts the two-hour season finale of AMERICA’S FUNNIEST HOME VIDEOS (8 p.m., ABC, Fri.).

TEAM SPORT
Vince Vaughn and Ben Stiller star in the 2004 comedy DODGEBALL: A TRUE UNDERDOG STORY (8 p.m., Fox, Fri.).

BLOODTHIRSTY LOVE
The detective/vampire mash-up MOONLIGHT (9 p.m., CBS, Fri.) ends its rookie season with Mick and Beth pondering their future together, given their differing backgrounds, not to mention their positions on mortality.

GEEK FEAST
A dramatic banquet on BATTLESTAR GALACTICA (10 p.m., Sci Fi, Fri.).

‘AMERICAN IDOL’ NIGHT
Ryan Seacrest, Clay Aiken and Kate Nash appear on JIMMY KIMMEL LIVE (12:05 a.m., ABC, Sat.).

HERE HE STANDS: Usher will appear on “Saturday Night Live” tomorrow.

HE IS LEGEND
Will Smith and Kevin James star in the 2005 comedy HITCH (8 p.m., ABC, Sat.).

DOGGIE DAY CARE
Competition at a dog-treat bakery on GROOMER HAS IT (9 p.m., Animal Planet, Sat.).

NEFARIOUS SCHEMES
The sheriff tests a new poison on ROBIN HOOD (9 p.m., BBC America, Sat.).

EYELINER AVENGER
Johnny Depp stars in PIRATES OF THE CARIBBEAN: AT WORLD’S END (9 p.m., Starz, Sat.), the third movie in the franchise, making its TV debut.

NONVIOLENT PROTEST?
A cop is linked to a controversial killing at a political rally on LAW & ORDER (10 p.m., NBC, Sat.).

MICHAEL SCOTT!
Steve Carell hosts SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE (11:30 p.m., NBC, Sat.), featuring musical guest Usher.

THE INTERNET AGE
On four episodes of THE OFFICE (NBC, Sun.): the website launch (8 p.m.); Dwight challenges the website (8:30 p.m.); debt woes (9 p.m.); money management (9:30 p.m.).

UH-OH
Lynette faces child-abuse charges on the season finale of DESPERATE HOUSEWIVES (9 p.m., ABC, Sun.).

RIDING THE WAVE
Lester Holt of NBC News hosts MYSTERY OF THE CRYSTAL SKULLS (9 p.m., Sci Fi, Sun.), a speculative look at legendary relics and a thinly disguised tie-in to the new “Indiana Jones” movie.

NASHVILLE STARS
Trace Adkins, Brooks and Dunn, Miranda Lambert and other artists perform on the 43rd ANNUAL ACADEMY OF COUNTRY MUSIC AWARDS (8 p.m., CBS, Sun.). Garth Brooks will receive a milestone award recognizing his decades on the charts.

I’M A LUMBERJACK AND I’M OK
Gale-force winds make a tough job nearly impossible on AX MEN (10 p.m., History, Sun.). KEVIN McDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

MUSEUM

Director of Visitor Services, AD-301-15

Salary: $115,317 to $149,000

Exciting career opportunity on Capitol Hill. Join the team of professionals dedicated to providing support and services to visitors to the United States Capitol.

The Architect of the Capitol (AOC) in conjunction with the U.S. Capitol Guide Service is recruiting for a Director of Visitor Services for the U.S. Capitol Visitor Center (CVC). The incumbent is responsible for the overall operation of Visitor Services in the CVC and the implementation of policies and formulation of programs that will fulfill the CVC's mission of security, visitor comfort, and education. Other responsibilities include planning and implementing all Visitor Services operations, such as: advance reservations, visitor assistance and information, orientation theater operations, Capitol tours, special services for visitors with disabilities, interpretation within the Exhibition Hall, and directing visitors in the event of an emergency or evacuation.

Qualified candidates must have experience in managing operations involving a high volume of visitors in a museum, visitor center, major entertainment attraction, or comparable facility.

Position is being filled through an ON-LINE application system. To apply, please GO TO: <http://www.avuedigitalservices.com/aoc/applicant.html>

Applications submitted by any form of mail delivery will not be accepted. If you are unable to apply on-line, you may call the Employment & Classification Branch at 202-226-7000 for assistance. Vacancy announcement CVC 2008-172 closes on June 5, 2008.

A new program helps match people and cats by personalities

It happens to all of us. You fall in love with someone's looks, but then he's not quite what you expected. Even, sometimes, if he's a cat.

"People come in and say, 'I had a black and white tuxedo cat before, so that's what I want,'" says Jim Monsma of the Washington Animal Rescue League in Washington, D.C. "But cats are not all the same. They have widely divergent personalities."

That's why the shelter is using the Feline-ality program, developed by behaviorist Dr. Emily Weiss of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Part of the ASPCA's Meet Your Match program, which also includes Canine-ality for dogs, the program assesses a variety of behaviors in individual cats. It rates the animals on confidence and sociability, which Weiss' research has shown are independent of each other.

The program then tallies those assessments to place the cat into nine personality categories, which can be matched with a family's situation and desires.

PET PROJECT: Jim Monsma gives Barnaby the cat, left, a personality test in Washington, D.C. Bellamy, right, was identified as having a "personal assistant" personality.

Your Feline Fit

It's not unlike a magazine quiz to find out, "Which kind of cat are you?"

The program is used at 45 shelters, with additional facilities preparing to use it.

On this day in the Washington shelter, Monsma brings Barnaby the cat into an unfamiliar room and opens the carrier.

Barnaby shoots out and takes charge, checking out the room and everything in it. Monsma uses a stopwatch to track how much time Barnaby spends on social interactions. For example, he monitors Barnaby's noises and blink rate, both indicators of sociability.

Monsma then initiates some interaction, offering a hand, toys and hug. Each transaction earns Barnaby some points.

His total comes out high on both scales — he's highly sociable and highly confident.

All of the types have fun, vivid names and descriptions. Barnaby is a "leader of the band." His opposite, a cat low on both scales, is called a "private investigator," who stays out of trouble.

Equally important to the Feline-ality program is the fact that people differ, too. Those who want to adopt fill out a questionnaire and the results give them a color code, telling them which set of personality types would be best for them to consider.

The program aims to end animal-human mismatches, often a reason cats are returned to the shelter, Monsma says.

"There are so many cats out there," Monsma says. "Why not get one that fits?" LINDA LOMBARDI (AP)

A Tragic Kingdom

Love and war tend to be lousy, if dramatic, bedfellows. These eternal themes that launched a thousand poems and a zillion rock songs are at the center of "Antony and Cleopatra," currently being staged by Shakespeare Theatre Company. Auto Repair Talk

Auto repair expert PAT GOSS was online Thursday and offered advice about what to check when you have a broken turn signal, how long hybrid batteries last and what he thinks about cars' running on hydrogen.

My metal car key broke off in my car door. How much does it generally cost to get rid of that broken piece of key stuck in the lock? I'm trying to decide whether it's worth it.

With all the new technology being built into cars nowadays, are cars more or less prone to developing problems? For example, some cars seem to have very elaborate drive systems, traction control systems, braking systems, etc. Does this all add up to more frequent and more expensive trips to the mechanic?

Actually, modern cars are much less prone to problems than older cars. But when they do have a problem, they are a lot more difficult and a lot more expensive to diagnose and repair.

With gas prices where they are, I'm interested in purchasing a hybrid car. But I'm worried about the maintenance and repair for hybrids. Are there special considerations when owning a hybrid? I've heard that for the Prius, for example, owners have to replace the battery every seven years at a significant cost.

The battery comes with an eight-year warranty, as do most of the really expensive control parts. I own an '09 Camry Hybrid and am not the least bit concerned about reliability. We see almost no problems with hybrids.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not in the mood to be on display—though your work may require you to present yourself in the best possible light, regardless.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A possibly explosive situation is likely to arise from an unexpected conflict over a minor issue. It's up to you to defuse it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Harmony and contentment may seem elusive as the day opens, but once you have one, the other will follow quickly. Both are attainable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Time is on your side, and don't let a hothead rush you into making a decision that could prove erroneous in the end.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can enjoy the company of many kindred spirits. The result will be more than emotional support; you may actually profit, too.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your interpretation of past events will figure prominently, and you may have the chance to share your perspective with a large audience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A major challenge comes your way, and you may not prevail. Win or lose, you'll enjoy yourself and learn a thing or two.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Be charming and sociable, but not overly manipulative. Sure, you're after something, but remain sincere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Distractions must be avoided, and you must focus squarely on one or two primary objectives if you wish to be successful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) That which you've been awaiting for some time is finally upon you—be sure that you've prepared yourself fully.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Don't balk when the opportunity arises to move ahead in a new fashion. Take it slow, as necessary, and explore some new boundaries.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're in need of a little guidance early in the day—and what you receive from a friend you can return to someone else when the time comes.

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.

■ Rattan chairs shaped like space pods.

Tables formed by placing sheets of glass on waves of wood. Furniture by Filipino designer Kenneth Cobonpue inspires tropical fantasies. With sustainable materials like coconut, he creates futuristic-yet-inviting pieces, sold at Muléh (1831 14th St. NW). He launches a new collection May 17 at New York's International Contemporary Furniture Fair.

How'd you get into furniture design?

Armed with a degree from the New York School of Interior Design, my mom went back to the Philippines to settle down. She was doing houses, bars and hotel lobbies, but she had trouble sourcing good furniture. So, she decided to make her own. I grew up to the sound of hammers and saws, and made my own toys and bridges over our small pond.

You're debuting a new collection at the ICFF. What's it like?

The new line is Noodle. I wanted to capture the beauty of paper sketches and whimsical doodles. By incorporating them with an architectural base, they take on the form of functional sculpture on pedestals.

What things inspire your designs?

The challenge of every designer is to find something special in the ordinary. I try to see everything in a new light, from the piece of toast on my breakfast plate to an old parking sign I pass by every day. I have designs inspired by everything from Chinese dim sum steamers to a bad hair day at the parlor.

Who do you see sitting on your curvy sofas or snoozing in your boat-like beds? Isn't Brad Pitt one of your clients?

Our clients are usually well-travelled, environmentally conscious and confident people who choose things not because they see it in a magazine, but because they have timeless qualities and feel comfortable. In today's world of machine-produced kitsch, it's nice to know that the chair you're sitting on is made by an actual person.

You have two young kids. How does your furniture hold up?

Its miniature architecture for them. They tunnel through the Croissant sofa. They climb all over the Dragnet Chair.

You use a lot of weaving techniques in your furniture. Will you maybe branch out into textile design?

It's a dream of mine to explore areas such as architecture and transportation. I am working on a car made out of bamboo and carbon right now. Our ancestors used to cross the oceans in bamboo boats. How difficult is it to make something that rolls on land?

"It's nice to know that the chair you're sitting on is made by an actual person."

Do you think there's more interest in your designs now that green design is so hot?

That's why I want to translate this warm, natural aesthetic I have into things aside from furniture. I read in Time that bamboo is now the hottest material for bicycles because its structural and tensile properties are better than carbon fiber. It's something I've known all along.

How does your design aesthetic affect your dress style?

It's all about the silhouette. I try to be minimal in form but romantic in detail. I'm inspired by what the Japanese do. Their cuts are great. That said, this season it's Jill Sander who has the most interesting collection that's wearable. AMY ALIPIO

THE TEXTILES LUSHLY displayed at Timothy Paul Bedding + Home (1529A 14th St. NW; 202-234-2020) could make even a workaholic want to call in sick and pull the gorgeous sheets and duvets by names like John Robshaw, Mateo and Area over their heads. The new, warehousey spot also sells antique Uzbek suzanis (pictured, $395), Moroccan tables, Michelle Varian's colorful, printed silk pillows ($184) and industrial-chic wire bookcases.

Indeed, not since Victor Mature and Kirk Douglas were the big movie stars in the 1950s have raging testosterone and man sandals been so thoroughly mixed in the mind of the public. And so it is surprising that now, in 2008, the girliest of girls are eagerly wearing these most muy macho of ancient footwear.

While the Manolo generally approves of the trend, he must caution that not everyone is suited to the style. They work best for young women of particularly feminine shape and demeanor. Others of different configuration may well invite unfavorable comparisons to Cato the Elder.

Of course, if you are going to follow the trend, then the best way to do so is with these costly, golden Giuseppe Zanotti sandals ($654, Zappos.com), which have been spotted most recently on Gwyneth Paltrow, and if that is not the definition of trendy footwear ...

Candy, Landed

CHOCOLATE TASTING MENUS and Euro-style hot cocoa are already drawing cacao-heads to Penn Quarter's new Co Co. Sala (929 F St. NW; 202-347-4265). But besides snarfing down haute takes on Boston cream donuts or tiramisu in the glam restaurant, customers can also snag mod boxes (four pieces, $10; 16 pieces, $38) of house-made bonbons in globe-trotting flavor combos like Pistachio Kulfi, Mango Lassi and, our fave, the subtly sizzling Linzer Chipotle.

Crinkle in Your Eye?

REMEMBER THE FIRST TIME you gasped, "Holy[expletive]! Wrinkles!" as you stared in the mirror? We do. We regretted every youthful indiscretion involving smoking or sun worship. But use dermatologist Patricia Wexler M.D.'s Intensive 3-in-1 Eye Cream ($32.50, Bath and Body Works), and you'll see improvement in days. Or at least we did. It won't turn Sophia Petrillo into Miley Cyrus, but it impressively firms minor lines.

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOEBLOGGER

I'm completely taken with the latest hot trend, gladiator sandals. Could you recommend a pair for me?

— MARILYN

■ Manolo says, like most peoples, when the Manolo hears the word "gladiator," he thinks immediately of the paradoxically thuggish, yet sensitive, Australian he-man Russell Crowe, all shouting and broody, as he hacks his manly-man way across the movie screen, clad only in the mini-skirt, shiny breastplate and fancy leather mandals.

THE RETRO STOP

Ribbons, pins and other trims reset the clock in Bethesda

Half the joy of tuning in to old flicks on Turner Classic Movies is seeing how 1920s flappers and 1940s noir heroines lived — and dressed. Any vintage fashion fiend who has ever wanted to steal Bette Davis' hat pins or coveted Elizabeth Taylor's buttons may think she's died and gone to the Hollywood notions store in the sky at the new Bethesda shop Accessories of Old (4822 St. Elmo Ave., 301-760-7228; Accessoriesofold.com). Early 20th-century ribbons, 1950s hair barrettes and card upon card of vintage buttons line the racks.

The emporium's new old stock — mint-condition frills and trims made way back in the last century — comes from the shuttered South African family business of co-owner Lisa Mainz. Her grandfather started a dressmaking supply business in Johannesburg in 1918; now she and her husband hawk the mint-condition leftovers (and there are loads) via the Internet and at the shop. "Everything here is vintage, except me," jokes Mainz.

A barrette shaped like sunglasses ($7) smacks of hipsters circa 1950 or so.

The neatly displayed, rainbow-colored trove — royal blue velvet ribbons; pale orange buttons shaped like fox heads; big, silver fabric flowers ($25 each) meant to trim 1940s hats — could inspire almost anyone to get crafty.

These old, mostly European decorations often get used in surprising new ways (pom-pom trim jazzing up a new miniskirt, luminescent old sequins glued into a new baby's scrapbook). But many times, some artsy person cleverly riffs on an item's original use. "One girl was going to put old shoe buckles on sneakers," says Mainz.

Inspiration is everywhere in the sunny space, from wide, jacquard trim ($2.85 per yard) with a red and white zigzag that could morph into a rocking belt, to rhinestone dress clips ($35-$75), which look like flashy pins. Snap one onto a length of ribbon to make a necklace or turn a matched pair into earrings straight out of "The Great Gatsby." Fuzzy, 1950s patches shaped like chicks, pink French poodles ($10.25 each) and mildly creepy dwarves seem destined for babies' onesies or hipsters' T-shirts.

Accessories of Old boasts clients including big-name jewelry makers, "artists, even stage designers, anyone who's into this look," Mainz. But it's also welcoming to casual DIYers: There's a free work station with glue and scissors at the back of the store, where the Mainzes will host craft parties. "Embellishment really does everything these days," says Mainz. Including, in this case, providing a very ornamental form of time travel.

The House of Sustain

Rogan's new duds save the world — and clients' money

In 2004, Rogan Gregory created Loomstate, a cool brand of denim and tees made of organic and sustainable fibers. Suddenly, eco-chic could actually be called chic. The New York designer — winner of the prestigious CFDA/Vogue Fashion Fund Award in 2007 — is also the power behind Rogan, an upscale line sold at Barneys Co-Op and the like. On May 18, he'll prove sustainable style can also be attainable as he becomes the latest designer in Target's GO International Collection.

JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

this collection of super-commercial, super-cheap clothing. I think the collection is now something you can invest in and wear for a while.

What are the biggest misconceptions about sustainable or organic style?

I know that I once perceived that to be eco, something had to be hemp and be created by some granola dude. But six years ago, I discovered you could get organic cotton and even convince mills to make it.

Any other eco-chic myths?

The major myth is that if something is sustainable or organic, it looks that way. You can make anything out of organic cotton.

What about color? Sometimes low-impact dyes equal low-impact hues.

To be honest, we concentrate more on the sustainable-fiber thing. Low-impact dyes do exist, and we try to use them as much as possible. But we still use indigo for Loomstate, and it's not perfect.

Isn't making cheaper clothing, aka "disposable couture," the antithesis of eco-friendly, though?

I struggle with this. My sister is an environmentalist who doesn't make a lot of money. And when I started Loomstate, she said, "This is great, you're doing this fancy, expensive clothing that's sustainable, but what about me?" Now Target — she shops there. So, you have to speak to both sides of the market to be responsible. It seems only democratic.

What inspired your GO Collection designs?

I call it safari-surf with a splash of punk. Like a pretty predator.

What's your favorite piece in the collection?

What was really nice is that I've really never been able to design swimwear

HIP, NOT HIPPIE: Easy-on-the-earth fabric stars on Rogan's vest ($27), tank ($17) and skinny pants ($40) for Target.

before. So, I really like the leopard-print bikini. Target let me do it in the fit I wanted — it's small, like Brazilian ones. Some of the cover-ups are also cute. And there's a linen/organic cotton cardigan my girlfriend has been wearing a lot.

What's more important — how something looks or whether it's earth-friendly?

Aesthetics are the most important thing to me. Design comes second, and sustainability third. I don't want to buy something if it's not good-looking.

Are there any other sustainable brands you're a fan of?

Patagonia really tries to think of ways to use recycled materials. They do brilliant functional clothing.

You do a line of wood, metal and leather furniture, Rogan Objects. What's it like?

We use salvaged wood, which is the most sustainable way to go. With the steel, we use recycled the best we can. And the leather is buffalo, which is more sustainable than other hides.

"I call it safari-surf with a splash of punk. Like a pretty predator."

What about your personal style? What are you putting on these days?

Well, I've been wearing the same pair of jeans for about five months. I think I've washed them once in that time, and I did it when I was taking a shower. You don't need to wash your clothes that much! I also wear a lot of vintage clothing, too. Whatever I wear, I don't throw it out. That's kind of my way of going about it.

New York designer Rogan Gregory waves the sustainable style flag.

Your other designs are pricier, but in your GO Collection, I can score organic short-shorts for $27. How did you cut costs?

Target's sourcing enabled us to do this. The company's economy of volume and their manufacturing leverage really helped keep the costs down. We'd been talking to them for a while, but we didn't want to do

A Grape Deal

Scoring a good bottle of vino shouldn't drain your bank account. We asked (and sipped with) wine experts to find good reds and whites under $15.

Benjamin Wallace's new book, "The Billionaire's Vinegar" ($25, Crown), tells the tale of the most expensive wine ever sold: a 1787 Bordeaux supposedly once owned by Thomas Jefferson that went for $156,000 at auction. That's a high price tag for a few glasses of vino. (And the bottle, it turns out, was likely a fake.)

But contrary to what Napa travel books and some wine mags suggest, it is possible to snag a tasty Merlot or Pinot Grigio without pawning your watch to pay for it. And we don't want you to resign yourself to Two-, or Three-Buck Chuck. "Price doesn't necessarily equal the value," says Christianna Sargent, beverage director at Domasoteca wine shop (1121 N. 19th St. NW; 703-894-5104). "The sweet spot is around $15 to $17. That's when you get out of the realm of cheap, sweet, undefined wines."

With that in mind, we asked a team of grape pros to suggest bargains worth uncorking for dinner — or a party — that run $15 or less per bottle. Then we invited three local oeno-fiends to taste and compare them at Domaso, the restaurant at the Hotel Palomar in Rosslyn. Last Friday, Andrew Stover, sommelier at Oya Restaurant; Paul Carlson, owner of Vinoteca Wine Bar; and Veronica Kunkel, owner of Arlington's Grape Juice shop and Restaurant Vero sipped, swirled (and sometimes spit) in a quest for recession-ready reds and whites. See the box, facing page, for what they said — and for details about where to snag the bottles they tried.

So, what's the secret to vine values? "You need guidance, and a good wine store is the place to get it," says Mark Phillips, executive director of the D.C. and Chicago-based Wine Tasting Association, who recommended two bottles for our tasting.

And don't fear the wine merchant: He or she really is interested in which food (be it caviar or corn dogs) you want wine to go with, and most relish the challenge of finding nice cheap stuff. "People might be embarrassed to say, 'I'm looking for something under $5,' but salespeople often have good advice," says Deb Harkness, who rates inexpensive varietals at Goodwineunder20.blogspot.com. And "once someone at a store knows your taste, it's like having a personal shopper," says Phillips.

Sampling as much vino as possible (while respecting DUI laws) will help you figure out your fave grapes. Most wine shops and grocery stores like Trader Joe's and Whole Foods hold frequent tastings. "It's about try-

The Cheap Sips

Local wine pros Peter Carlson (Vinoteca), Veronica Kunkel (Grape Juice, Restaurant Vero) and Andrew Stover (Oya Restaurant) weighed in on six wines costing $15 or less. Nos. 1 and 6 were recommended by author Laura Holmes Haddad; Nos. 2 and 5 were chosen by Domasoteca's Christianna Sargent; Nos. 3 and 4 were put forward by Mark Phillips of the Wine Tasting Association.

1. A to Z Pinot Gris, Oregon, 2006

($14.99) This bright, crisp white was the overall fave of our testers. AVAILABLE AT CECILE'S FINE WINES, 1351 CHAIN BRIDGE ROAD, MCLEAN; 703-356-6500

STOVER: This would be a good seafood wine.

KUNKEL: I'd put it with littleneck clams.

2. Picco del Sole Falanghina, Italy, 2006

($9.99) A complex, straw-colored white, this pick stumped our panel — none of them came even close to guessing its grapes. AVAILABLE AT DOMASOTECA

KUNKEL: This has such a clean, lemony taste.

CARLSON: It's something you could do with salmon, I think.

3. Pine Ridge Chenin Blanc-Viognier, California, 2007

($13.49) Tasters agreed that this slightly sweet white could take on spicy dishes but weren't uniform in whether they actually liked the stuff. AVAILABLE AT TRADER JOE'S

STOVER: I'd pour this with Thai food.

KUNKEL: It tastes like pink grapefruit. Is this New Zealand Sauvignon Blanc?

4. Borsao, Campo de Borja, Spain, 2006

($5.79) The least expensive wine, this red tasted strongly of cherry fruit. In our survey elicit a mixed bag of responses — some thought it was fine, others thought it tasted cheap. AVAILABLE AT TOTAL WINE & MORE STOVER: This isn't serious wine. It's more like it's for chugging.

CARLSON: But for the average person, it'd be good with food.

5. D&N Primitivo, Puglia, Italy, 2005

($9) Unusually full-bodied for the price, this bottle loves steaks — and our trio thought it'd also go well with, surprise, Italian cuisine. AVAILABLE AT DOMASOTECA

KUNKEL: This is a good pasta wine.

STOVER: Or risotto.

6. Bogle Petite Sirah, California. 2006

($10.99) A juicy, medium-bodied red wine with luscious black berry fruits, this easy drinking red pleased some more than others. AVAILABLE AT TRADER JOE'S STOVER: It's not heavy, but I kind of like it. It'd probably be good with barbecue.

CARLSON: Yeah, it's got sweetness that could stand up to that.

ing them and seeing what you like," says Laura Holmes Haddad, author of "Anything but Chardonnay: A Guide to the Other Grapes" ($20, Stewart, Tabori & Chang).

Looking beyond big names (Kendall Jackson) and regions (Bordeaux, Napa) can also cut a home bar bill. Like designer jeans, well-known wines command higher prices. "You'll need to expand your wine horizons," says Harkness. This might mean seeking "small, boutique wineries, which often have better values," says Stover. Or it could require hunting for sippables from "places in the world where labor is inexpensive: Southern Italy, Greece, Spain, South American countries," says Phillips.

Either way, quests for good-but-cheap stuff usually don't entail digging for chard in the Safeway markdown bin. "And I wouldn't drink anything from 7-Eleven," says panel taster Carlson.

Is it possible to spend too little on wine? Maybe, and this often depends on the grape. Pinot noir, laborious to grow, "is hard to find for under $15," says Sargent. But some lighter, pleasant whites can often be had for about the cost of the ham sandwich that would go well with them. "I used to think the cutoff was $5, but I just had a pretty good Czech wine that was $3.99," says Harkness. "I do stay away from Cabarnets and Chards that are really low-priced. If those types are under $6, they're mass-produced."

However much you pay for your next bottle, be sure not to overthink it. Since Socrates was a kid, wine has been more about camaraderie than impressing guests with stellar, pricey cellars. And, says Holmes Haddad, "if you're eating pizza, do you really want to drink a $50 wine?" And, besides, that bottle will soon be empty, meaning you're ready to sample more inexpensive, yet intoxicating fruit of the vine. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

LESSER-KNOWN GRAPES FROM LITTLE-KNOWN REGIONS OFTEN GET CRUSHED INTO QUITE DELISH, NOT VERY PRICEY WINES.

FACING PAGE: Stover, Veronica Kunkel of Arlington's Grape Juice and Restaurant Vero, and Paul Carlson of D.C.'s Vinoteca Wine Bar tried and critiqued three whites and three reds, all priced at $15 or less.

Makeovers teach eye shadow expertise and lipstick tricks

Having a complete stranger assail your face with pointy objects and brightly colored paint sounds like a scene from “Saw XX: The Makeover,” which may explain why many women feel so intimidated when the cosmetic-trons at the mall offer to slap a few products on their mugs. But whether you’re interested in spiffing up your look for an event or want to finally master the elusive “smoky eye,” spending a little time in the chair might teach you to apply lipstick as well as Marilyn Monroe or put on eyeliner without looking like Marilyn Manson.

To help others combat makeup artist phobia, we sent Kirsten Ehrenspeck, 28, an Olney teacher, cosmetics novice and bride-to-be with a May wedding, to four Montgomery Mall cosmetics counters. At appointments, she asked for a natural look that photographed well and that she could reproduce on the big day. There was no winner in our makeup marathon, but Ehrenspeck came away with great products and advice for future fix-my-face forays. ERIN CLEMENTS RUSHING PRETTY OFFICERS: Mall makeover pros can make you look terrific or a tartier than a Pussycat Doll, depending on your choice.

Lancome

PRODUCTS USED: 15-20
PRICE RANGE: $23.50-$68
BRAND LOYALTY: Flexible. Our artist recommended homeremedies (oat-meal instead of exfoliant!) as well as products from other labels.
PROS: The cosmetics gal set aside all of the products she had used for us to pore over plus a list. A colored-in paper face showed exactly where shades were applied.
CONS: The consultant was a tad contradictory — a few moments after recommending all matte products, she applied quite a bit of glitter. And our tester’s features didn’t pop in photos they way they did with other lines.
BEST PRODUCTS: Color Ideal Foundation ($37.50), Primordiale skin care line ($48-$68).

MAC

PRODUCTS USED: 15
PRICE RANGE: $14-$35
BRAND LOYALTY: Promoted the brand but didn’t push.
PROS: Our makeup artist herself had on a flawless face and a personality that immediately set our tester at ease. The look was polished and simple but photographed well; our bride-to-be felt confident she could reproduce the effect on her own.
CONS: We were a little disappointed that the artist didn’t give a very detailed application play-by-play, but that could have been due to this look’s simplicity. Great eye makeup was slightly marred by messy mascara.
BEST PRODUCTS: Fluidline Eyeliner ($15); Eye Shadow in “Brule” and “Charcoal Brown” ($14).

Sephora

PRODUCTS: 20ish
PRICE RANGE: $18-$75
BRAND LOYALTY: Promiscuous, as you would expect with so many lines to choose from.
PROS: For this enjoyable, energetic redo, the artist genuinely seemed interested in giving our tester what she wanted and was very honest and flexible. The makeup photographed well, and the pro gave our bride-to-be her contact information for follow-ups.
CONS: In person, the makeup was not convincingly natural (Barbie doll-esque would be a good descriptor). The application was also the longest and most complicated.
BEST PRODUCTS: Stila Eye Shadow ($18), Lorac Blush/Bronzer ($24).

Trish McEvoy

PRODUCTS: Around 30
PRICE RANGE: $16-$125
BRAND LOYALTY: From face wash to foundation, our artist was die-hard Team Trish.
PROS: Eager to get our tester in a chair, this brand cheerleader asked many questions about the wedding (time of day, bridesmaids’ dress color) and then chose interesting colors like mint shadow and navy eyeliner.
CONS: Toward the end of the session, our tester felt a heavy pressure to buy. She was glad she didn’t when after an hour of wear, the foundation felt oily, and there were cracks in the concealer.
BEST PRODUCTS: Base Essentials Waterproof Shadow Base ($24), Luxe Moisture Balm ($28).

Lessons Learned

We braved the bristly brushes and bright lights of many chairs to get the following know-before-you-go tips on mall makeovers. E.C.R.

■ Make an appointment. Contrary to our assumptions, counter ambush in the middle of a week-day does not guarantee good service. At a few places, we were asked to make appointments and come back later — so, call ahead. Sessions are generally free and last about an hour.

■ Don’t judge a makeup artist by her appearance. We encountered quite a few artists who seemed to have trouble using appropriate products on themselves. While they may have had obvious female facial hair or layers of vivid aqua eye shadow, all were fairly competent at choosing and applying products for our tester.

■ Try before you buy, but you should also eat, smile and take photos. Some issues, like oily foundation and vanishing lipstick, weren’t apparent until an hour or two after application. And while the products might look great under suspicious department store lighting, that doesn’t ensure they’ll make your features glow in photos.

Violet Phase

Roman senators and emperors often wore purple garments, which gave them a regal rep since the dye — extracted from thousands of mollusks — was pricier to make than gold. The hue, also loved by rockers, has sauntered into home decor. “It’s one of those colors we haven’t seen around in a while. There’s a freshness to it,” says D.C. interior designer David H. Mitchell, who put lavender linen on dining room chairs at this spring’s D.C. Design House in Georgetown. You could try it with gray or even yellow. Just don’t expect pals to say, “Hail, Caesar,” when you lounge in that new violet chair.

* BY INVITATION ONLY: UPCOMING WEDDINGS & UNIONS

Richard Cohen Nicole Goldberg

Rick, 25, works for a nonprofit. Nicole, 24, is a legislative aide. They live in the District.

■ The Main Event: A modern Jewish ceremony in Long Island, N.Y., on May 25. A semiformal reception will follow.

■ How They Met: As freshmen at American University.

■ First Impressions: "He seemed like a nice, smart guy. I felt totally comfortable with him." "I noticed her smile lights up a room."

■ First Date: They saw "Serendipity" at the Union Station movie theater.

■ How He Proposed: Rick had it all figured out: He created a treasure hunt based on their "special places in D.C.," ending at the Navy Memorial, where he popped the question. What he didn't count on was Nicole's running late. "My cell phone died, so I couldn't call him," says Nicole. "By the time I got there, he had been waiting out in the cold for two hours!"

■ Stupidest Fight: When Nicole jokingly accused Rick of cheating in a game of Candy Land, she says, "word spread around that we had broken up, and I was fielding calls from concerned friends the rest of the day."

■ Celebrating Heritage: Nicole's bouquet will be wrapped with lace from her mother's wedding veil.

■ When He Knew: "We stayed up all night to watch the sunrise. That night I realized that I wanted to spend every sunrise with her."

"From the beginning, I felt totally comfortable with him."

Come Fly With Me

When ANDREW BORENE found himself sandwiched between two fellow passengers on a flight from Minneapolis to D.C., he looked for a less-cramped seat. Not only did he find a better spot, but he also found love across the aisle. "As I was sitting down," he recalls, "I caught a glimpse of the most beautiful eyes I had ever seen." BETHANY COWLEY was just as entranced: "I thought he was really smart and charming," she says. By the flight's end, they had exchanged digits.

Since Andrew was in town for a job interview and was leaving the next day, their courtship was sped up. They met that evening in the Willard InterContinental hotel's lobby, and Bethany gave him a tour of the National Mall the next day. "We spent the rest of the day holding hands," says Andrew.

He got the job and moved to D.C. in November. They've been together ever since. In January, Andrew popped the question at the Jefferson Memorial. They'll wed May 31 in Jefferson City, Mo.

Andrew, 32, is an attorney. Bethany, 22, is a sales manager. They live in Alexandria.

Taryn Koball, Graham Williams

Taryn, 29, is a lawyer. Graham, 39, is a telecommunications manager. They live in Arlington.

■ The Main Event: A laid-back beachy wedding in the British Virgin Islands on May 31. Taryn will walk down the sandy "aisle" barefoot.

■ How They Met: At a Dublin pub. Graham was visiting from London for a boys weekend, and Taryn had traveled from South Dakota to run the Dublin Marathon. After hearing his presumptuous "hello," Taryn tried to walk past him, but her buddies stopped. "He turned out to be charming in the end!"

■ First Impressions: He says: "A long blonde hottie!" For Taryn, it was simple: "Who doesn't love an accent?"

■ First Date: A week later, Graham took

"His pickup line was a very smooth, arrogant, somewhat presumptuous 'hello.'"

Taryn on a walking tour of London. "We hung out in Hyde Park and talked about how we both love to travel," she says.

■ How He Proposed: He got down on one knee on a beach in Swakopmund, Namibia. Afterward, they popped into a nearby bar and toasted their good news with locals and ex-pats.

■ Most Hated Clothing Item: "He has a checkered jacket I try to throw out every year, but somehow it always ends up back in the 'keep' pile."

■ First Date: Dinner at the Cheesecake Factory. "I was very comfortable with Rufus," says Felicia. "I ate all of my food and some of his." "There were a few times where food and water would come flowing from her mouth with every funny word that came out of mine," says Rufus.

■ How He Proposed: He presented her with a card and roses at their hear her response from the exuberance of the three ladies in attendance."

■ Most Hated Clothing Item: "A black, silk-like outfit that, while comfortable, does not compliment her beautiful figure," says Rufus. "It's frumpy. I believe she still wears it proudly."

■ Pet Names: Felicia is "My Love," "Baby" and "Sweetheart." Rufus is "Baby Cakes," "Puddin'" and "Sweetie."

■ Their Song: Nat King Cole's "(I Love You) For Sentimental Reasons." "One day I couldn't get the song out of my head," says Felicia. "I realized I loved Rufus because I found myself thinking of him as I sang it to myself."

Getting Married? If you'd like to see your wedding or commitment ceremony in B.I.O., send your favorite informal photograph (wacky is fine, but please don't send a formal engagement shot), plus your names and ceremony date to weddings@readexpress.com. Please contact us at least one month before your wedding. We'll get back to you with some questions as your big day approaches.
